

Ontario government announces commitment to fund Phase II of Peel Memorial

Osler hosted The Honourable Dr. Eric Hoskins, Minister of Health and Long-Term Care along with dignitaries and hospital and community leaders at Peel Memorial Centre for Integrated Health and Wellness last month where the government announced its commitment to fund Phase II of the new outpatient hospital. The expansion will consist of over 100 new rehabilitation and complex continuing care beds that will help support Brampton's future health care needs.

Minister Hoskins also announced funding for an additional 31 beds for Osler's Brampton Civic Hospital. These beds are in addition to the six beds at Brampton Civic and 22 beds at Osler's Etobicoke General Hospital, which were announced in October to help further support the hospital in the flu season.

Enhanced discharge process provides greater access to care

Osler continues to look at ways of providing patients with even greater access to care while in the hospital and beyond. With a seven per cent Alternate Level of Care (ALC) rate, the lowest of all Ontario hospitals, Osler is ensuring patients are discharged and transitioned into the community more seamlessly. The ALC rate measures the percentage of inpatient beds occupied by patients no longer requiring acute medical care. Osler continues efforts to improve its discharge process with the support of local health care partners in the community.

Partnering for healthy holidays

With the holidays right around the corner, health providers in the Central West region are preparing for the growing number of people needing care at hospitals or home care in the community.

To manage this expected seasonal increase, Osler along with Central West Local Health Integration Network (LHIN) Home and Community Care, paramedic services, primary care providers and many other community partners are working together to deliver safe, quality care over the holidays. As in previous years, health providers in the region will respond collaboratively to help patients transition home safely, with LHIN support, so hospitals can discharge patients more quickly and help reduce emergency department wait times. The plan is designed to improve patient flow, and provide better access to services in the community.
